PLASTIC, COWS AND CARS.

Cows are eating plastic bags, little do they know it's very bad for them. The plastic collects in the cow's stomach building up until the cow begins to starve and experiences great pain. Many cows are in mortal danger due to this consumption. The cow is helping the city by trying to recycle waste into food, but this is not food. A local councillor came up with a solution "Why don't we make edible bags? After use they can be eaten". Well let's hope they won't make them too tasty or we will all want one!

Observations show that the cows often walk, sit and run down the road along with the cars. The cow tempo is different from the car. The car is always in danger of going too fast, being impatient and making a big fuss. The cow has its own time, it can't be hurried. The relationship that cars and cows have, has sparked an interest in policy writers. A new scheme could be implemented: one cow four car ratio. The cow keeps things slow and people watchful.

ELEPHANT, HUMAN BATTLE.

Elephants love beer. Human Elephant conflict is on the increase; elephant land is being taken by humans. Are elephants are raiding villages looking for food or taking revenge? People and elephants are dying in a battle that has no end if solutions aren't found.

MONKEYS, FRIDGE, DEATH AND WATCHING.

Last weekend, Rebecca from Munika district had a monkey in her flat. The male monkey walked in, opened the fridge and began to eat everything. When she asked it to leave and it shouted at her showing its teeth. Cases like this are on the rise due to monkey habitats shrinking and human habitat increasing. Monkeys near to a cyber cafe have learnt how to unplug computers, making the users irritated. For the monkeys it's a fun game.

Monkey business is on the increase, as are language courses for monkey and humans to become more acquainted with to each others native tongue.

The Rhesus monkeys at the Tughlaqabad Fort are getting fat. Visitors supplied with bananas from the local street traders are over feeding the monkeys. Sometimes people have to persuade the monkey to take the banana as it really struggles to eat another mouthful.

Today at the fort, people watched the monkeys, the monkeys watched the people and the cows did as they always do.

The bigger the human population, the less space for the others. A high way of trees from one end of the city to the other is planned help the monkeys stay on top of it. This would also help the bird and squirrel population to have more space.

DOGS, WORK, REVENGE AND MYSTERY.

30,000 stray dogs live in the city, is there enough employment for them all? Many are out of work.

On Monday, a family of dogs in the South Ex area attempted to avenge the death of a friend. The dog was run over repeatedly until it was flat as a pancake on the cold concrete. For days after, the others went on an attack revenge rage, crazy spree attacking and teasing wheels of cars and bicycles. Running at them then running away.

People thought they had lost their senses, but the dogs new exactly what they were doing. One night, G was walking home; a dog followed her and wouldn't go away, so she let it follow. She offered it chicken, but it wouldn't eat it, she offered it bread it but didn't take it. It just followed her without wanting anything.

.VULTURES, MURDER AND TRAGEDY.

Vultures are being poisoned. A cheap drug to used to treat sick cattle is the culprit. The vultures eat the dead animals and get poisoned! This senseless murder has gone on for so long that the vultures are on the brink of extinction. Without the birds to eat dead animals, the scavenging flies, rats and dogs are growing in number. Men working the dump sites used to have to elbow the vultures out of the way. The place was packed with them and they used to clean a carcass of its flesh in minutes. The government is doing nothing, as the vultures, 'the great cleaners of the dead' die out
